

I love Perth. I love its energy, its beauty, and everything it offers- our river, our skyline, our people, our culture. But like many of you, I also see the areas where we've fallen short in recent times.

I believe its time for bold, practical leadership that's unafraid to tackle challenges head-on. Making our city cleaner, safer and business-friendly. I see what many residents and business owners see, used syringes discarded in alleyways, shopfronts being used as public toilets, and behaviour that makes people feel unsafe. This isn't the Perth we know and love, and it shouldn't be the Perth we accept.

As Lord Mayor, I will take immediate action to address antisocial behaviour in our city. This means improved street lighting in known hotspots, expanded CCTV coverage for better monitoring and increased ranger patrols. They'll be targeted and used where they're needed most. I'll aim to work closely with WA Police to ensure move-on notices are being issued so offenders aren't allowed to continue disrupting our streets. Everyone deserves to feel safe walking, living and working in this city, day or night.

I'll bring the council closer to its businesses and residents. I'll put them at the core of what we're trying to achieve. There's a growing disconnect between the City of Perth, its business owners, and residents. Too many people feel ignored. Too many small businesses are struggling to get clear information or meaningful support. Too often, I see residents attending council meetings and are told "sorry out of time, come back next month." That's not good enough. Its time we got back to the basics of good governance: listening, responding, and supporting the people we serve. If elected, I will lead a council that: actively engages with local businesses not just in times of crisis, but all year round.

If you share this vision, I ask for your support. Lets make our city better together.
